

ELECTIONS FOR THE YEAR 1907

Some discussion has been heard in public places, as to how the elections were now arranged. Some contended that no election would be held next year, it being added that all municipal and other officers elected in the fall of 1905 for two years, would hold over an extra year.

Just how this impression got out is not known, but at least it does not prove to be the truth in the matter.

The abolishment of spring elections in Ohio, sought also to provide for the divorcing of local and state elections, i. e., to so arrange all elections that county and state elections would be held in November on the even years, e. g. 1906, 1908, etc. National elections, of course, come on every other even year, e. g. 1908, 1912, etc. Township and municipal elections will be held every two years on the odd years, e. g. 1907, 1909, etc.

Under this arrangement no county officials nor state officials will be elected in 1907, all officials in county and state offices, not elected in 1906 will hold over for an extra year. Chief among these officials are: Sheriff, and Auditor and the Governor of the State. On the other hand all county and state officials elected this fall will serve for two years or until their successors are elected in 1908. Another statement which may be remembered is that all county and state offices will be filled anew at the 1908 election. This statement is without exception.

Generally speaking, the same statements may be made with reference to township and municipal officers. All these officials elected in the fall of 1905 were elected in conformance to the present plan and their positions will regularly be filled again in 1907. No township nor municipal officers will be elected this fall, and all those not elected in 1905 will hold office for an extra year, or until 1907. At that time every official position in the municipality of Logan and in each township of the county will be filled anew.

Just as soon as the election of municipal and township officials in 1907 and the election of the county, state and national officials in 1908 is accomplished, the schedule will be clear and easily understood, since after that the two sets of elections will alternate yearly, local elections coming on the odd year and county elections on the even years.

Why They are Scared.

(Lexington Herald.)

It may be inferred from the amount of mud thrown at Judge O. W. H. Wright by the Republican newspapers of this district, that somebody is "scared" of the result. We know of no better way to increase Judge Wright's vote, than for the Republican papers to continue in their dirty course, as it never fails to react in favor of those maligned. Recent election statistics will amply verify the statement, and in order to swell Judge Wright's vote, we hope they will continue. Judge Wright was nominated by a representative delegate convention, while his opponent secured a place on the ticket by "boss" chosen delegates from Athens, Hocking and Meigs, and never before in the political history of the Eleventh district, was there such infamous methods employed to nominate a candidate, and Al. but Douglas was the beneficiary. Mr. Wright is the honestly chosen candidate of a free, open convention, while Mr. Douglas is the nominee of a triumvirate of Athens and Bosses in other counties, and is not the choice of the voters of his party in convention. The independent voters know the true situation, and that is why the Boss chosen candidate is "scared."

Harris Cleaning House.

Every good citizen of Ohio will "stand by" Governor Harris in his efforts to clean out grafters and corruptionists in charge of some of the state institutions. He is, in so doing, carrying out the express will of the people in the election of Gov. Pattison. Gov. Harris seems to have caught the spirit and with his ear to the ground hears the echoes of their potent voice. The state, the people and the unfortunate inmates of the public institutions must be "protected." There are some institutions where the record is clear and that court investigation, they have sought to fear. Any hesitation in turning out the rascals and their aiders and abettors will be very displeasing to the people, who now stand by Governor Harris in what he is doing. But he must persist.—Kenton Democrat.

HANG CREPE ON SALOONS

Warren, O., Oct. 20.—Niles saloonists heard from the action of the grand jury today when the following were arraigned on indictments charging them with keeping open their saloons and selling on Sunday: Patrick Lyden, James McGuirk, James Gallagher, W. H. Burnside and Charles Crowe. Crowe was also indicted for keeping a gambling place. All pleaded guilty and were fined $100 and costs. Crowe drew additional fine of $200 on the second indictment. Frank Blumethal pleaded not guilty to the charge of selling liquor to a minor.

Judge E. E. Roberts opened the vials of his wrath over the open violation of the liquor laws and told the saloonists that if the violations were kept up he would hang crepe on every Niles saloon so violating by closing them up as a nuisance. "You fellows have been so openly violating the law and so evidently protected in the same, that you thought there was no law; but let me tell you once for all that we have grand juries in the county that will indict, a prosecutor that will prosecute and courts that will sentence, and don't you forget it. I will see that you conduct your business in a legal way or I will assure you that you will have no business."

History Repeating.

(Kenton Democrat.)

Last year's political history is repeating itself. The discontent of Republicans grows with the approaching election. It was so last year. Toward the close of the campaign, the independent Republicans demanded that Governor Herick who was a candidate for re-election come out boldly and declare himself free from the influence of bosses, but Herick thought he could win without the independent Republicans. He counted the aid of the bosses as worth more to him. The demand is now made upon Carmel Thompson, Republican candidate for secretary of state, that he come out and make it clear that he is not for the machine, but Carmel dodges. His record as speaker of the House of Representatives during the session last winter is against him.

Result of Neglect.

In most cases consumption results from a neglected or improper treatment. Dr. J. C. Foley's Honey and Tar cures the most obstinate coughs and prevents serious results. It costs you no more than the unknown preparations and you should insist upon having the genuine in the yellow package. Bort & Co.

GALLIA IN TURMOIL.

Two Republican County Tickets Nominated.

Gallia county republicans are going to try and make the election of Judge Reeves unanimous. They are right now arranging to knock the last prop from under Nephew Hollis' candidacy, after which it will be only a matter of counting the votes for Judge Reeves, and issuing him the certificate of election.

At no time during the campaign has Johnson had a chance in any of the counties of the district unless it was in his home county of Gallia. The republicans there have had a habit of fighting each other during the entire year and then getting together on election day and piling up an old time majority. It was thought that they might do the same this year, but as Fairfield, Hocking and Vinton were known to be almost solid for Reeves, with Meigs figured to be about a stand-off no great care was felt, even if Gallia did give Hollis a "boost." It would only be complimenting a "native son" and the majority for Judge Reeves would be sufficient anyhow. But Gallia has decided to get into the "swim" along with the other counties and now their is not a pin left upon which Judge Bradbury's relative can hang a hope for election.

As is well known, the republican factional fight in Gallia county is of long standing and the most bitter in the state. For years, the republican voters there have lined up under the leadership of Postmaster Sherman Eagle, on one side, and the Johnsons, Maucks Switzers and Bradburys, on the other, and sometimes one side was victorious and sometimes the other. One year ago, no less than $35,000 was spent by the Johnson-Mauck-Switzer-Bradbury crowd to control the primaries and they managed to capture a bare majority of the committee. They at once set out to land Hollis Johnson in the fat judgeship, but ran against a snag the first thing in the shape of Sherman Eagle, who was the Gallia county member of the judicial committee, with power to select the judicial delegates. To overcome this obstacle, they promised Eagle that if he would allow them to name the delegates to the judicial convention they would withdraw all objections to his re-appointment as postmaster, and as he was having a hard fight to land that office, he made the bargain and even came up to the convention himself and helped steal the coveted nomination from Otto Vollenweider, who had been promised the place by every county in the district. Imagine his chagrin, when the next day after the convention, the very fellows who had made the deal with him, took the train for Washington and made a personal appeal to the President to kick him out.

Having won the nomination by tricking Eagle, together with the influence of Judge Bradbury, who compelled Meigs to quit to repudiate her pledge to Vollenweider and vote for his nephew, Johnson, the latter's faction imagined itself to be the "whole thing" in Gallia politics, and even presumed to nominate a county ticket without the formality of holding a convention. It was this that proved the last straw. The Eagle bunch would not stand for the committee-made ticket and at a meeting last week, adopted a resolution, condemning the action and calling a mass convention to nominate a new ticket. Their resolution was as follows: "Whereas, a part of the Republican Central Committee of Gallia county, Ohio, in flagrant disregard of the will of the Republicans of the county, and in utter contempt of the liberties and representative government for which republicans have ever stood, on the 18th day of September, 1906, exercised the function of nominating candidates for office, thus usurping the rights and privileges of the people at large, and

Whereas, we regard this action of said body of men as unheard of and unparalleled in all the history of the Republican party, and well calculated to destroy all freedom and liberty of action, as well as being antagonistic to all progress and the common peace of the people of the county, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, who were duly elected as central committeemen from our respective wards, townships and precincts, and who have not thought it right to assume rights and privileges which belong to all Republicans alike, do most earnestly and emphatically protest against the action of said body of men, and we hereby call upon the Republicans of the county to meet in mass convention at the south house in the city of Gallia, O., on Wednesday, the 17th day of October, 1906, at 1 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of nominating candidates for county offices, and we hereby designate E. D. Davis, chairman, and Charles H. McCormick, secretary of said convention."

This will mean two republican tickets in Gallia county and a strong probability of the county going democratic from top to bottom of the ticket. Anyhow, it will mean that Candidate Johnson will lose hundreds of republican votes and destroy his last hope of winning the election.—Pomeroy Democrat.

STAND BY PATTISON.

(Helio Gazette.)

Last year a Democratic Governor was elected in Ohio by a plurality exceeding 40,000, and yet many thousand Democrats neglected to vote. From 800 to 1,000 of these careless, or despondent Democrats were in Jefferson county.

Before the election The Gazette told its readers that Governor Pattison would surely be elected, and that a full Democratic vote would elect the rest of the ticket. The event justified the prophecy, and the Democrats of Ohio have only themselves to blame that the whole Democratic State ticket was not elected, together with a clean majority in both branches of the Legislature.

Governor Pattison, though receiving every Democratic vote polled excepting those influenced by liquor interests, was clearly elected by Republican votes, and to the God-fearing Republicans of Ohio belongs the credit for his election. Most of these men are still living, and if any one of them has ever regretted his vote for Pattison the fact has not been made public.

In the person of S. A. Hoskins, Democratic nominee for Secretary of State, there is a candidate today who stands for exactly what John M. Pattison stood for last year, and because he has taken the same manly stand for temperance, the organ of the liquor interests has come out in bitter opposition to him, and demands that the so-called "liberal" Democrats cut his name from their tickets. It only requires full knowledge of these facts to secure for Mr. Hoskins the votes of the Republicans who voted for and elected Mr. Pattison last year.

But there is justification for the belief that many Republicans will not stop with voting for the head of the Democratic ticket, but to show their disapproval of the State management of their own party, will deposit a straight Democratic ballot. Thousands upon thousands of Ohio Republicans disapprove of the Senatorial Cabal and the Dick machine, and they have fine opportunity this "off year" to express that disapproval, and make the rebuke felt without undue injury to their party. Would it be strange if the Democratic ticket should profit immensely by this condition within the Republican ranks?

Aside from direct voting for Democratic candidates, there is promise that many Republicans will stay away from the polls to express their lack of faith in the present State leadership, and their dislike of the doings of the State Convention, especially in its worked-up endorsement of the Ohio Senators, who have combated the President at almost every turn in his struggle for betterment of existing conditions.

The only cause for Democratic stay-at-homes last year was lack of confidence, begotten of a long series of defeats, that voting would do any good. But Pattison was elected, and so this year Ohio Democrats have an inspiration to vote that they have not had in many years. It is not unnatural, therefore, to assume that Democratic absenteeism will be less than it has been, and not unreasonable to suggest the possibility of Democratic success, if not one word of appeal be made to the rank and file.

But this possibility will become a certainty if such plain talk as is given here has the effect intended—to bring out the Democratic vote. If 90 per cent. of the vote cast for Bryan is put in for the Democratic ticket this year, every man on the State ticket will be elected, and a majority of Democratic Congressmen, including Frank Summers, in the Sixteenth district. Isn't it well worth the voting? Oregon, Vermont and Maine have all pointed the way in elections held this year, and we believe Ohio will not be found wanting.

WANTED—Good reliable girl, for general house-work, Good wages paid. Call on Mrs. Chas. Wright.

THAT SPEECH.

Carbonhill, Oct. 10.—The Republican meeting here last night was carried out according to the program. The exercises consisted of band music by our band boys which rendered some most excellent music, and some kind of low muttering by the Douglas Quartette, some sang real well others very common, some wore specks others did not, some had a full head of hair and some had as few hairs on the top of their heads as they have stars in their crown, some sang with eyes wide open and some sang with eyes shut by spells.

While the quartette was singing and burlesquing such honorable men as Mr. Jesse Gabriel, Mr. Joseph Barron and Dr. Tippi, Mr. Robert Steward, the Republican candidate for commissioner, clapped his hands and cheered. It must be remembered that this is the same Robert Steward that has been a Democrat all his life until just the last two or three years and hauled Democrats to the polls all day for Mr. James Henry Carnes when he made the race against Mr. James Thomas for sheriff. I know whereof I speak, for Mr. Carnes furnished the money and put it into the hands of a Democratic central committeeman at Carbonhill and he passed the money to Mr. Steward at 6 o'clock on election evening after the polls had closed. Mr. Democratic voter remember this when you go to cast ballots, and cast them for a man that will not cheer when your party candidates are being slurred as they were when Mr. Steward cheered.

After the music ceased silence reigned for a few moments but was soon broken by the chairman introducing Mr. H. M. Whitcraft, who held the audience spell bound for some time. He told them among other things that the Democrats had been met and defeated at every campaign since 1892, forgot to mention last fall. He told them all about the panic of 1898 to 1899, and told them that the Democrats were responsible for it, but he failed to tell them that the panic had already begun, and that the gold reserve in the National treasury had sunken to $60,000,000, he also failed to tell anything about the greatest panic the world ever heard of which occurred under a Republican administration which was called the panic of 1873. He also told how that immediately after Mr. McKinley's election the wheels of industry began to move, which Mr. Douglas said was incorrect, for Mr. Douglas said it was the July following before the wheels of industry began to move. Mr. Whitcraft told about how Probate Judge Frank P. Martin sneakingly appointed a committee to sneak in on Mr. Harbaugh to examine the treasurer's office in the absence of Mr. Harbaugh. He also told them that Grover Cleveland and A. B. Parker were two of the best types of the Jeffersonian Democracy of any two men in the party today, he also told of the excellent ticket in Hocking county but utterly failed to say a single word about how the ticket was nominated. Whether it was nominated by an open primary or by eleven men that met inside the corporation. His eloquent remarks did not bring anybody to their feet, but they brought Mr. Moses Strawn to the floor or at least some how during the excitement Moses got over balanced and fell flat to the floor bringing two chairs with him, this brought forth the greatest cheers of the occasion, after the excitement had died away everything was all right except Moses was red in the face. Some think as the leader falls so will his followers. Mr. Douglas spoke part of his time on national issues and said he got his nomination the same as every candidate had got the nomination under machine politics, but had to either accept it under such circumstances or refuse the nomination.

The audience was fair sized, composed of more women and children than voters. We have not heard a single person say that they had been converted, nor have we seen a new hymn book in town since the occasion. But that quartette put on such air. It almost raised our very hair. Some sang high and others higher. It sounded like a common choir. Some stood up straight. And some were crooked. And heard their chest and sang the bass. Some sang without the use of books. And others sang with smiling faces. But altogether they made some noise and did their very best. But when the votes are counted, boys then they will sing the rest. ONE WHO WAS THERE.
